<sup>1</sup> Students will be expected to pay their own room and board abroad.

<sup>3</sup> The mini-term fee is estimated at $2,400 and covers the airfare between Schenectady and New Orleans, all room and board, both in Louisiana and on campus before and after the trip, plus all fees and local transportation in Louisiana. The exact mini-term fee may change due to variability in transportation costs.

<sup>4</sup> Students are billed Union College's comprehensive fee for the winter and spring terms and will be the study abroad fee only once.

<sup>5</sup> Students will not be billed for this program that is a non-credit bearing internship program fully funded by the Klemm Fellowship.

<sup>7</sup> Students are billed Union College's comprehensive fee for the winter and/or spring terms (or a full year's comprehensive fee in the case of the William Cady Stone Fellowship academic year program) and Union College will pay the tuition, room, and board to the host institution. The total amount paid to the other institution, including course waivers or any fees for additional courses shall not exceed the cost of the Union comprehensive fee for the applicable number of terms abroad. If the host institution will allow a fifth course for an additional fee, Union College will pay that fee. Students are responsible for paying any amount that exceeds the Union comprehensive fee for the applicable number of terms abroad.

<sup>8</sup> Union study abroad insurance must be purchased if HTH is not the medical insurance of the program provider.
